FRONT AND CENTER

Touching Magic Strings

I hate to exhibition. Does that surprise you? I can teach in front of a group of eight or 80 and act like a nut, but ask me to dance an exhibition in the evening fun dance and I will run as fast as I can. It's not my comfort zone.

I, more than anyone, feel like I know what I am capable of and I have never felt insecure about teaching clogging. Breaking down a step or sharing a choreography I have done has not been a worry for me. I love to see when a new dancer "gets it" or when you see a floor of people doing a dance that you put together.

Ask me to perform a solo, and all the insecurity of someone who thinks of themselves as a teacher more than a dancer comes to bear. I have said no to most requests to exhibit for many, many years. A few old friends like Lynne Ogle and Naomi can drag a song out of me in a show, but NO ONE could get me to dance a solo. Nuh uh.

In October, at Naomi Fleetwood-Pyle's annual Oktoberclogfest, a super special young lady named Brittney asked me if I would dance with her in the evening exhibitions to a dance called Mamma Mia. I gladly accepted. You see, Brittney dances with her hands, because her spina bifida prohibits her feet from joining in. I would be handling that part that night. The music started and I clogged in my street shoes so everyone could hear the beautiful sounds of Brittney tapping the steps on her dance tray. Talk about seeing pure joy. You don't need to have champion feet to bring a smile to an audience. What you need is the courage to take your talent and set it out for the world to see. Oliver Wendell Holmes said, "A few can touch the magic string, and noisy fame is proud to win them: Alas for those that never sing, but die with all their music in them."

It's scary to perform, especially before your peers. I will always have self doubts. But I am thankful for amazing people like Brittney whose music shines bright for all to see.

Happy Clogging, Jeff Driggs, Editor

Naomi holds the microphone to catch the sound as Brittney Hochstetler clogs.
Use what talent you possess: the woods would be very silent if no birds sang except those that sang best.

From the Cover

Brian Hendershot tells about his shoe and himself.

Hello, my name is Brian Hendershot and I am 21 years old. My clogging career started in 1996 as a member of the Clogging Sensation directed by Jennifer Murton. In 1998 I, along with other members of the Clogging Sensation, was cast a clogging role in "Rockin' and Rollin' Down the Road", a play that was a fundraiser for the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT). This was only the beginning of my love affair with clogging. In late 2001 I was approached by Brian Tucker, former member of the Trailblazers clogging competition team from Tulsa, Oklahoma. He recruited me for what was to be the first clogging competition team from Michigan. That same year, The Rhythm Sensation was born. Later in 2003, stating my ability and dedication to the team, I was named Co-Director. What an honor. I have enjoyed a lot of success in competitive clogging with several awards in solos and duo/duets, including two overall amateur solo titles.

I have become a regional instructor and have taught at Clog Jam and The Memorial Day Dance Spectacular, with Clog Fest and The Hills of Kentucky to come. Despite all this, I consider my greatest accomplishment in clogging to be one of only six males chosen in the United States to clog in "Rhythm Dance Too", a professional performance that took place during World Fest 2004 at the Silver Dollar City theme park in Branson, Missouri.

I suppose you're all wondering about the shoe shown on the cover. I've had that pair of shoes for quit some time. Like any pair of shoes, clogging or otherwise, they showed some wear and tear. The wear and tear on these, however, was a little different. Usually the front of the shoe by the ball tap likes to start breaking because of toe stands, etc. The shoe started breaking right by the heel. It steadily got worse and worse and finally the entire bottom piece of leather totally ripped off. Unfortunately, it decided to rip off at a bad time, during my advance steps teach at the 3rd annual Clog Jam workshop in Jackson, Michigan. Fortunately, I was able to quickly find a replacement pair and -- thank goodness -- I hardly missed a beat of the teach.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Jennifer Murton, Brian Tucker, Jeff Driggs, and all my family and friends. These people saw something in me that I don't even think I saw. I've enjoyed all my success in clogging and I'm very thankful for it. The best is yet to come.

Sound Management: How to Use MP3 Files

In-depth instruction, advice and resources for state of the art sound

Reprinted with permission by Vic Ceder, Los Olivos, CA with additional and updated information by Jeff Driggs

Why use MP3 files instead of 45 RPM records, Cassettes or CD's?

- Your records, tapes and cd's can be converted into MP3 files and stored on your laptop computer. Bring your laptop to the dance instead of a record case. You don't need to worry about forgetting to bring a specific record since all your music is always in your computer.
- No need to lug around a heavy record case. Lug your laptop around instead!
- Software can be used to change the pitch without changing the speed, or change the speed without changing the pitch.
- Software can be used to minimize noise such as 'pops' and 'scratches'. (a.k.a. noise reduction)
- Software can be used to automatically do 'record resets' (a.k.a. looping) when a long version of an instrumental is needed for instruction. Dancers won't notice the 'needle' being picked up and set back down again at some random spot, or you won't lose time rewinding or starting over. You simply set a start and end loop marker for each record and software does the rest.
- After an original is converted into an MP3 file, the original medium itself can be stored as backup. It never has to be used again, and hence you'll be less likely to break it, scratch it, or warp it.
- Over time, a record generally tends to lose sound quality due to minute scratches and warping. This doesn't happen with an MP3 file. An MP3 file is a digital recording, and will sound the same the first time it is played as well as the millionth time.
- A play list or database program can keep track of your MP3 files. You can select an MP3 file from a dropdown list sorted by title and/or label. There is no more need to fumble through your record case trying to locate a particular record.

Why use MP3 files instead of Mini-Disks?

- A computer hard disk can hold a lot more music files than a mini-disk. One gigabyte of storage can hold about 600 MP3 song files.

- Software can keep track of your MP3 files. Locate a particular file by name, or select it from a dropdown list. You don't need to carry around any paper directory listings to let you know which Mini-Disk track contains which song.
- Software change the pitch and/or tempo, and perform other 'edit' functions.
- The words on a computer screen are larger and the controls are easier to see and use. Some players such as WinAmp allow you to customize their appearance (using 'Skins').
- The computer can also display cue sheets.

Disadvantages?

- MP3 is a compressed format. The sound quality may be less than minidisk, but I doubt that anybody can notice it. MP3 typically produces high-quality near-CD audio.
- The computer could break, hang, or freeze up. Of course, so could the MiniDisk player or amplifier.

What is MP3?

- MP3 is a way of compressing music. The algorithm consists of two primary steps:
  1. Sounds that can't be detected by the human ear are dropped. For instance, adjacent sounds that are too close to differentiate due to frequency or duration are combined into a single sound; sounds at different frequencies that have different amplitudes may have one of the two sounds dropped because the other sound overrides it so much that the human ear can't perceive it.

2. The data is then zipped up as with a standard data compression algorithm.

- MP3 is customizable. That is, you can select the sample rate and bit resolution.

What you will need:

- Hardware
- Laptop computer
- The computer stores and plays the MP3 files.
- All discussion on this page assumes a Microsoft Windows-based PC.
- Hilton IN-LINE SIGNAL BOOSTER - MONAURAL
- The signal booster increases the signal from the computer to the amplifier.
- The booster is necessary for the Hilton 75. For other Hilton sound systems, it is optional. This is the same booster that you need for Mini-Disk players.
- The booster uses a stereo 3.5mm plug/jack. Do not use a mono connector, or you will damage the booster.
- The signal booster also acts as a volume control, so that the volume doesn't need to be re-adjusted every time you switch from a 45 RPM record to an MP3 file or vice-versa.

FX has four cool effects to apply to your sound files. Add Echo, Chorus, Flange, and Reverb, each with four definable parameters. These parameters are controlled via four vertical sliders on each side.

The Mixer

The PCDJ FX Mixer is designed both for those who don't have an external mixer and even for those who do. This mixer section has many features including Cross-fading, Player Volume Control, Main/Cue Volume Control, Cue Mix Control, Parametric 3-Band EQ Killer, and Adjustable Compressor.

Ripping

PCDJ FX will let the user copy music from CD to MP3, WMA and WAV formats and at definable qualities. The DB feature will populate the track names making it easy and fast to build your music collection.

Pitchfork that can change the speed or pitch. Unfortunately, the speed can not be changed without changing pitch, and vice-versa.

DeFX (multiple effects module) apparently can separately control the pitch and tempo.

Chronotron is excellent at changing the tempo without changing the pitch.

NT Pitch can change the pitch without changing the tempo.

Windows Media Player (free)

- The Microsoft Windows Media Player can also be used to play MP3 Files.
- If you have Internet Explorer, the Windows Media Player is probably already on your computer. If not, or if you want to make sure that you have the most current version, download the Windows Media Player for free from http://www.microsoft.com/downloads/search.asp? (be sure to select the correct operating system)
Product = Windows Media Player
Operating system = <your system>

Cool Edit 2000 ($69)

Cool Edit 2000 is a very powerful program that can do many tasks, including:

- Capture music from an external source such a record player and save it on your computer as a WAV file. A program with this functionality is known as a Ripper.
- Convert WAV files to MP3 files. A program with this functionality is known as an Encoder. A 20 MB WAV file typically encodes to a 1.8 MB MP3 file (a savings of over 90%).
- Edit the music to reduce 'pops' and 'scratches'. Change the pitch but not the speed, and vice-versa.
- Cool Edit 2000 can be downloaded for free, but you only get a 30-day evaluation license, and you are unable to create an MP3 file longer than one minute. Buying the software ($69) gives you a registration code that allows full use of the software.
- Download Cool Edit 2000 from <http://www.syntrillium.com/> Cool Edit 96 is an older version of the program. It doesn't have the 30-day restrictions, and is probably still downloadable somewhere for free.

AudioGrabber ($20)

- AudioGrabber is a CD-Ripper program. It reads an Audio CD in your computer's CD drive, and creates a WAV (or MP3) file for each selected track.

Ceder Square Dance System

- <http://www.ceder.net/csds.php4> The Ceder Square Dance System (CSDS) is our product. It can play MP3 files via either Winamp or the Microsoft Media Player.
- A database keeps track of your MP3 files, which you can select from a sorted list. Check out the CSDS Music Player and the CSDS Music Database.

Using MP3's

(low output) jack to the computer's Microphone-Input jack.

3. Run Cool Edit 2000 (or any other program that can record and save a WAV file)

4. From the main menu, select File | New.

5. Select the following settings:

Sample rate = 44100 Channel = Mono Resolution = 16-bit

(Some professionals use 32000 Hz + Mono + 8-bit. You may want to experiment and see what resolution works best for you.)

then click the 'OK' button.

6. On the player, set the Bass and Treble dials to reasonable positions.

7. Verify that everything is properly setup:

You may need to 'Open Volume Controls' on your computer and enable Microphone-Input. Set all the recording volume levels to maximum.

Place a cassette in the player or record on the turntable, and start playing it.

Click the 'Record' button (little red dot near the lower left-side of the Cool Edit 2000 screen).

Adjust the volume on the player so that the decibel indicator (red bar at bottom of Cool Edit 2000 screen) flickers between -15 dB and -3 dB.

Click the 'Record' button or the 'Stop' button to stop recording.

From the main menu, select File | Close All to close all files.

Answer 'No' when asked to save changes.

From the main menu, select File | New. Verify that the Mono option is set, then click 'OK'.

Record the record.

Click the 'Record' button then start playing the record.

After the record ends, click the 'Record' or 'Stop' button to stop recording.

If the amplitude of the recording looks low, or if you want to make sure that all of your recording are at the same volume level, do the following:

From the CoolEdit main menu, select Transform | Amplitude | Normalize | 100%. This will normalize the volume level.

9. Save the file as a WAV file (a WAV file uses about 6MB per minute of music — a typical square dance record needs a total of 18 to 20 MB). Saving the music as a WAV file is important in case you want to edit it later. This is because each time an MP3 file is edited, some fidelity is lost. A WAV file is essentially an exact copy of the record, whereas an MP3 file is a 'fuzzy' copy.

From the main menu, select File | Save Selection. Enter a filename (such as RecordName-RecordLabel-RecordNumber), and make sure that the 'Save as type' is 'Windows PCM (*.wav)'. Click the 'Save' button.

10. Now, save the file as a MP3 file.

Method 1: From the main menu, select File | Save Selection. Enter a filename (such as RecordName-RecordLabel-RecordNumber), and make sure that the 'Save as type' is 'MPEG3 (*.mp3)'. Click the 'Save' button.

Method 2: Drop the WAV file onto BladeEnc (see below under MP3 Encoders).

How to play an MP3 (or WAV) file through your amplifier

1. Connect a cable from the computer's Line-Output jack to the Hilton IN-LINE SIGNAL BOOSTER to the Hilton Tape Music jack.

2. Run the Winamp Player, CoolEdit2000, or the Windows Media Player.

3. Load a MP3 file, then click the play button.

3. Adjust the Bass and Treble controls on the Hilton amplifier as necessary (decrease bass and increase treble).

Copyright Issues

1. Legally, you must own the original record to make copies of it.

2. Any copies that you make are for your own personal use.

3. It is illegal to distribute copyrighted music to others without the consent of the artist and/or publisher.

4. I actually didn't realize until recently that copyright issues are a big problem for the square dance music industry. The music producers stand to lose much revenue, even go out of business, and the square dance community will no longer get much new music if such problems persist. The following copyright-related "moral dilemmas" have happened to me:

Disclaimer

1. Use the information on this page at your own risk.

Warning(s)

1. Always carry a few records with you when you're calling, just in case some piece of equipment (such as the laptop computer) fails.

2. Alternatively, (this is what I do), carry a CD-ROM with a subset of your MP3 files and the appropriate software. Since laptops are so ubiquitous nowadays, I expect to be able to borrow one in case of an emergency.

Miscellaneous comments

1. MP3 is a lossy compression format. If you decide to change the pitch, speed, or edit an MP3 file in any manner, some fidelity will be lost when the file is recompressed (saved) into MP3 format. For this reason, I suggest that you insist on a non-lossy version (e.g., a CD or a vinyl record) whenever you purchase music. Personally, I would only consider purchasing an MP3 file if it was the only way to get the music, and only if I absolutely required the music.

- Enjoy clogging on hardwood floors, sit on the spacious front porch and look at the grand
- Smokey Mountains, invite your friends to your cabin for a memorable "Fontana" style
- after party. Enjoy a weekend of mostly intermediate pop and country line dances, a full
- traditional program, and evening fun dances like no other weekend of the year!
- The magic of the Fontana Clogging Jamboree is the atmosphere.
- Mostly adults attend, but kids (and kids at heart) are welcome. There is something for
- everyone here. We celebrate the grand tradition of clogging workshops like we all
- remember: a grand hall, lots of fun material and great fellowship. In addition, from hiking
- and fishing, to horseback riding, mini-golf and swimming, Fontana will certainly become
- your favorite clogging destination too!
