To the Readers Lesson Learned

A recent email from a teacher whose ability was questioned by a student reminded me of an editorial I offered many years ago. I hope you will indulge me to share this again.

Sometimes our students become our teachers. During a Summer dance camp that I was teaching, a talented but brash young man said to me, "I see you are teaching in the advanced hall. You and advanced?... I don't see it." After my immediate reaction to his display of what I felt was total disrespect, and an impromptu need to launch into every tricky advanced step I knew, I covered the embarrassment of the situation with a joke and accepted the apologies of all those within earshot who bolstered my ego with hearty praise of my dancing skill.

But the words stayed with me. Isn't it something how an avalanche of praise will digest so quickly and one negative comment burn in your gut like so much spicy food?

Why would someone say that they couldn't see me teaching anything more than easy to intermediate clogging? Well, maybe it's because they never had.

I've been clogging for nearly 30 years and teaching for more than 25. As a workshop instructor, you tend to choreograph for the mainstream of festival goers and to have a repertoire of material at any given time in a range of levels. Certain teachers gain a reputation for certain types of choreography or are asked to present more easy routines or more difficult. I always prided myself on trying to have material at most all levels — including some advanced — and to even challenge line dancers with interactive routines that had dimension and formations. Somewhere along the way though, between aching knees, fatigue, burn out and the ease in just presenting the material in a fun and light atmosphere, I sometimes forgot that the best way to teach dance is to dance.

"To teach is to learn twice," said French essayist and moralist Joseph Joubert. I think I got so caught up in the act of presenting, sometimes I forgot to learn with the dancers. By sharing the experience of the dance, you relate it more fluidly. The feet and the body are much more expressive than the most articulate speaker or the most entertaining presenter.

So, I owe an apology to one obnoxious — but honest — young man. Looking back at my own experiences, the teachers that made the biggest impression on me were the ones who challenged me to achieve through their guidance, wisdom and example. Like the old proverb, they opened the door, but I had to go through it on my own. Looking back, even though I went the distance, I honor them for the journey. The sad thing about teachers is that their legacy isn't an audacious one. There are few monuments to teachers except in the collective memories of the students they reach through the years.

Maybe a more than middle-aged clogging instructor with teenage students shouldn't worry if the kids don't see them as a great dancer. That's mid-life for you. What I hope is that someday a group of cloggers will be talking about memorable teachers, and if my name would happen to come up, someone might say "Yeah, I see it." I guess I've still got a lot of learning to do.

Happy Clogging, Jeff Driggs, Editor

Your Letters & Emails: Where It's @

You Gotta Have Hope

A long overdue note to tell you what a fine magazine you have. I enjoyed the Double Toe Times for many years, first when the late Bobbie Adams was editor and now with Jeff. There is so much good information, pictures and articles about clogging and clubs from all over the clogging world.

The highlight of each issue for me is your editorial. The wide range of topics and your down to earth, logical perceptions are awlways excellent.

I had just retired after twenty years of teaching clogging when you came and gave us an exciting clogging workshop in Edmonton, Alberta Canada. Marilyn Hansen was right when she said everyone should experience Jeff Driggs at least once in their clogging career. I thank you again from all of us here and especially from me.

My clogging is minimal now, b ut the dance is still alive and well in Alberta thanks to several younger instructors.

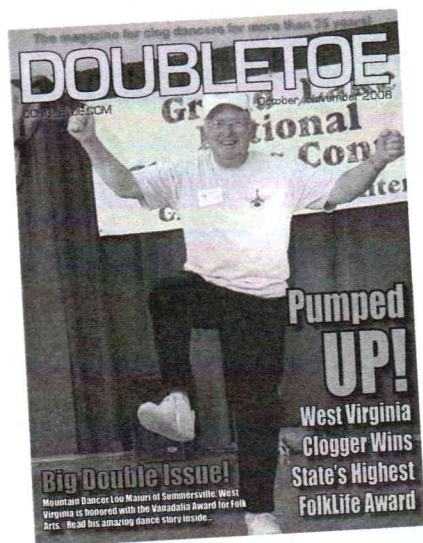

Thank you for a wonderful magazine and for all it does for clogging.

*Hope Pennock
Edmonton, Alberta Canada*

Editor's Note: Thank you Hope for a very touching letter and for your long and distinguished service to clogging in Canada. I, too, have slowed down from dancing quite a bit and I am so thankful for the many opportunities to travel and teach workshops and meet such amazing people like you along the way. Happy clogging to you always!

Florida Clogging Group Celebrates 25 Years with Reunion Celebration and Hoedown

by Foreman Heard

In the early 1980's, Florida was the "line dance capital" of the world. Oh, there were a few competition and traditional teams scattered around, but for the most part even the mention of traditional mountain or freestyle dancing to a Florida instructor got a look of disdain, or more often than not a sharp comment of "we don't do freestyle." When a group of clogging friends from Central Florida made several trips to Mountain City, Georgia, and Fontana Village, North Carolina, and saw traditional clogging first hand, they realized that clogging was more than line dances and "Hoe Boogie." In July of 1984, they set out to become a part of the tradition that was the true clogging experience.

Scott Bilz and Foreman Heard sat down at a table with a note pad and started laying out ideas. Scott wanted to start a team that would be able to compete in the traditional categories on a national level, and one that could also promote the traditional style locally and where ever they went. They talked about costumes and colors and banners and emblems, but first they needed a name, one that sounded traditional and possibly referred to buck dancing, which at the time was becoming a more common term among cloggers. On the pad they wrote names: 8 Point Buck, Wild Turkey Cloggers, Buckin' Bluegrass Cloggers, and several more, but the name that really stood out was Buckin' Mule. In order to be add a little mystery, they chose the imaginary town of Soldier's Creek, Florida, as their home town, and their official name became the Buckin' Mule Mountain Dance Team of Soldier's Creek, Florida.

They talked about competition and categories in which they thought they could compete. All the traditional four couple categories seemed attainable if they could find enough dancers. There would be no

to be taught, only dances and routines to be learned for shows and competitions, so finding experienced dancers was a necessity. They had already talked to few other friends about the idea of a competition team, and they were willing to join. That meant that they had to leave other groups and teams to join. Instructors in those days (as well as now) were always complaining about other instructors "stealing" their dancers to form a new group, and essentially this was the same thing. But the point most instructors failed to understand was that if they had been providing the dancer what they needed in the way of a challenge, then there would be no reason to leave. There were a few hurt feelings, but most people got over it.

Males are always hard to come by on clogging teams so that is where they started. In addition to Scott and Foreman, they signed on Tim Winkle and Steve Dangleman, and then they started looking for girls. Their first recruit was Joyce Hensley, who had a group of her own, but who was anxious to join. In August 1984, the team posed for its first picture which appeared in the August issue of The Double Toe Times. By mid-August they had four girls and practices began.

They read all the books they could find about traditional mountain dancing and competition rules. They studied the rules for the first competition they would enter in October at Fontana Village. They pieced together five or six routines, video taped themselves dancing, and just to be sure the routines were correct, they sent them off to be reviewed by friends familiar with clogging competitions. The answers came back that the routines were good, and that with a little polish, they should be fine by the time the Universal Championship came around in October. Now it was a matter of practice and more practice.

At Fontana in October, their first routine at the competition was a line dance performed by the guys to the music Old Time Rock & Roll by Bob Seger, and although they received only a second place trophy, beat out by a team from Georgia, the routine was clearly the audience favorite. Over the years the routine continued to please crowds when ever it was performed.

The next routine of the day was a traditional four couple precision dance. Again they placed second, this time to their chief rivals at the competition, another team also from Florida. They were beginning to think that they had not prepared well enough and they were beginning to doubt their abilities, but then came the freestyle routines, which they knew were finely tuned. For the Country Hoedown category, they took first place beating the other Florida team and several others from Georgia and North Carolina. With the Running Set Hoedown coming up later in the day, they retired to the parking lot for some walk-through practices.

One of the judges at the competition was Garland Steele from West Virginia, author of The Running Set Book, a book the team had studied thoroughly in planning their routine. In running set, teams strive for the precision of traditional Appalachian dance figures, combined with the traditional freestyle footwork that made this Appalachian Square Dance so unique. As the music started and the team moved onto the floor, the judges had their pencils poised above their score sheets ready to mark off for the slightest error. The competition among the teams was close and even a missed handhold could mean the difference between getting a trophy, or leaving empty handed. About half way through the routine, Scott noticed that Mr. Steele had laid down his pencil and was simply relaxing in his chair and watching the dance. "That's when I knew we were home free," Scott later said.

And, he was correct; they took first place in the Running Set category. Based in that score and the remainder of the dances, the Buckin' Mule was eventually named the Universal Champion of the entire competition beating out teams from twelve other states. Several months later after dancing in five other competitions, they were named as the National Clogging and Hoedown Council Champion in two categories for the year 1985, and they repeated the feat again in 1986.

While winning was always important to the group, it was not their primary concern. Over the next seven years the team went to competitions in Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, West Virginia, Tennessee, Missouri, and California. Many of the dancers traveled places they had never been before, and in some cases haven't been since, and while taking home a trophy or cash was always nice, clogging competitions were mainly just an excuse to go somewhere. Trips were often planned just so they could eat at special restaurants like the Dillard House in Mountain City, Georgia, or the Rendezvous in Memphis, and breakfast was always Cracker Barrel or a Shoney's buffet.

All the original guys from the team have remained in contact over the years, and still occasionally challenge a restaurant owner to keep a buffet line well supplied. An on April 4, 2009, the owner of Bubbalou's Bodacious BBQ in Orlando felt the strain, as the team held its 25th Anniversary Reunion Celebration and Hoedown at the restaurant. Including the dancers they were able to locate, the children of dancers, and parents and friends of dancers, seventy-eight people showed up for a five hour sharing of stories, pictures and videos. Numerous costumes and memorabilia were brought and enjoyed.

At the end of the day some of the group even attempted to clog a little, pushing the tables back and dancing a hoedown to their favorite music Lost Indian Medley. Foreman was quoted as saying, "Now that they are older they know how it felt when I was thirty-five and dancing, and most of them were teenagers." Excited as they were, no one attempted to do an eight minute routine which used to be the standard.

They finished out the day watching more videos from their eight year run, and marveling at how fast the music was. They remembered that often when the team would compete, there would be other teams dancing that would make announcements before their routines asking people to turn off their video cameras, as if to say that their dance was so special and perfect that they did not want anyone to steal their secret moves. The Buckin' Mule, however, took the opposite approach in their effort to just have fun. For them the standard announcement was always, "If you have a video camera, please turn it on and tape this routine. It might be the only time we get it right, and we would like to have a copy."

When they were not attending competitions, the team was often giving exhibitions around Central Florida, and entertaining at conventions at Walt Disney World. Their dancing together ended some time in 1992. No one recalls exactly when.

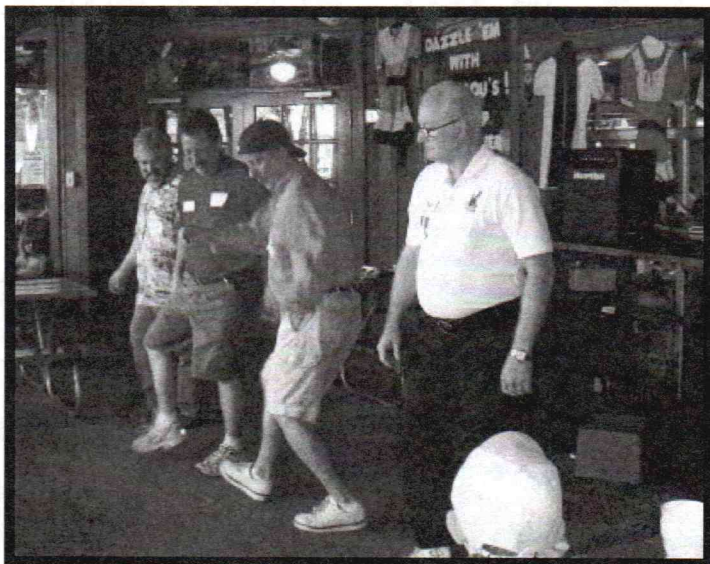

Earlier this year, Foreman, Tim, and Scott discussed the possibility of holding a reunion and inviting everyone who had ever danced with the team, even if it was only one time. Through internet research and phone calls, they were able to locate and send information to all but three dancers out of thirty. The attendance at the celebration was emotional: happy, sad, and a lot of fun, and luckily no one got in a fight or pulled a muscle. Everyone pledged to do it again soon, and with one final "Mule Yell," they all departed.

Many clogging teams exist because of the drive of the director, who seems to be obsessed with winning every possible championship the team can enter. The trophy, the money, the prestige, movie contracts (yeah right) seem to play a big role in the motivation. Ever see the "Little Miss Perfect" competition on cable television? The mom is always pushing and often quoted as saying, "She just loves doing this," but they never ask the kid.

Ask a member of the Buckin' Mule, why did you work and dance so hard? The answer will be, "Because we loved it and enjoyed it. We had a great time, and it was fun going places. And, Foreman knew the location of some of the best restaurants in the country. Aye-EEEEeee!"

Cloggers in the Spotlight

After three years of friends encouraging me to participate in the annual Ms Georgia State Clogger Pageant, I began a tenacious journey toward the December 6, 2008 event.

My age qualifies me as a senior citizen, yet I was required to compete against women in the age division of 36 and up. Therefore, setting the bar higher than my original goal was crucial.

Although I was confident in my dance ability, pageantry was a totally new challenge. Through the advice of a former pageant winner, I participated in a few local events sponsored by Georgia's Hometown Pageantry. Receiving the titles of Senior Ms Douglasville, Senior Ms Gold Rush, and Senior Ms West Georgia proved to be an uplifting experience. I consider it a great honor to be associated with such a supportive organization and look forward to being a part of their future activities.

Regardless of how tired (or not in the mood) I felt at times, preparing for the clogging pageant demanded a tremendous amount of self-discipline. The foremost motivations that kept my sight on winning the crown was two-fold. As a high school substitute teacher, I sincerely want today's youth to know that with determination and hard work, goals and dreams can be achieved. As a senior adult, I wish to inspire other women my age to act upon their young-at-heart ambitions.

On the night of the clogging pageant, I asked God to help keep my mind focused and my showmanship superb. My victories were remarkable! In the 36 and up age division, I received awards for best interview, best verbal presentation, best talent, and best costume. Receiving another award for overall verbal presentation served as a compliment to my intellect. However, the 36 and up age division crown went to a competitor.

But suddenly, my victories went from remarkable to spectacular! While congratulating my crowned competitor, an unexpected surprise echoed across the auditorium. "And the Ms Georgia State Clogger Overall Winner in the age division of 14 and up is.....Peggie Fowler!"

Georgia Clogger Peggie Fowler Wins Statewide Clogging Pageant in Adult Division

Winning such a prestigious title has presented opportunities for entering additional pageants in 2009. Preparations are already being made to participate in another clogging pageant in October. Seeking the means to participate in the Ms Senior Sweetheart of America Pageant is another challenge on my schedule.

Mississippi – Alabama Cloggers Shoot it Out!

By Angie Miller

Two duet teams from the Mississippi Magnolia Cloggers attended the Bama Blast Clogging Competition in Oxford, Alabama, and brought home 11 awards. The competition was fierce as the large competition teams battled for top prize. Guns were drawn and blazing at the Western-themed event!

Karah Purvis, of Florence, and Angie Miller, of Clinton, won first place in the young adult age division for their traditional duet, a bluegrass tune House and Home; contemporary duet, a flashback to the 60's with Dancing Queen; show duet, a novelty act to It's Raining Men; and short duet, a freestyle competition with each duo having 48 beats to wow the judges. Angie Miller won first place in the young adult solo freestyle competition.

Judy Walker, of Clinton, and Kay Miles, of Crystal Springs, won first place in the adult age division for their traditional duet, Faith Hill's Mississippi Girl, contemporary duet, a routine to the spunky pop song Think Pink, and their short duet. Kay Miles placed first in the adult solo freestyle competition.

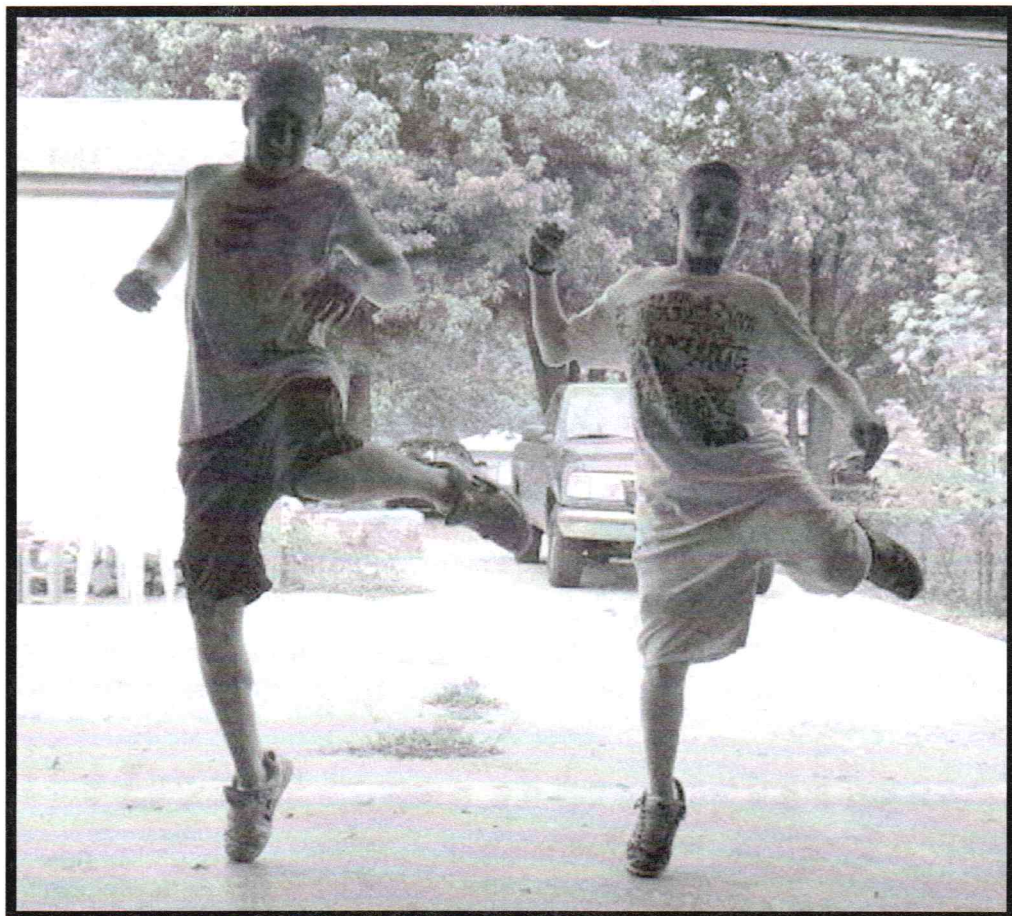

All four cloggers competed in the choreographed solo category with Angie Miller winning first place for A Little Less Conversation, Judy Walker second place with Dance Like There's No Tomorrow, and Kay Miles third place with The Twist.

Other groups from Mississippi were also represented at Bama Blast. Southern Sweethearts, directed by Adrienne Hartley, and Southern Vybe Cloggers, directed by Rebecca Rouse, took home top honors in many of the freestyle and team categories.

The MMC studio is located in Clinton, Mississippi. Visit www.magnoliacloggers.org for more information.

5-6-7-8 Our 2009 Double Toe Times Choreographer's Contest 5-6-7-8

Do you write your own routines and want to share them with your fellow cloggers? The Double Toe Times magazine of clogging is the place to have your choreographer seen by hundreds of clogging teachers and thousands of dancers! To showcase choreographers, the Double Toe Times magazine is sponsoring another choreography contest! Routines may be submitted through September 1, 2009 and the winner will be announced in the October issue of the Double Toe Times and will receive a $100 American Express gift card plus a free year's subscription to the Double Toe Times.

Entering is easy. Send your cuesheets to us at doubletoetimes@aol.com or mail them to us at P. O. Box 1352, St. Albans, WV 25177 postmarked by September 1, 2009.

Rules:

1. Cuesheets you send must be choreography you have written yourself or have co-written. It cannot be from another choreographer.
2. Routines submitted may be considered for publication in an upcoming Double Toe Times issue. Routines sent cannot have been printed in the Double Toe Times magazine in the past.
3. You may enter as many routines as you like. Each routine sent is another chance to win. Each submission enters you in the contest and the winner will be drawn at random.
4. Emailed cuesheets must be in Word format or PDF

This is your year to win! Send in your choreography today and look to future issues for more news, cues, contests and great clogging info!

Practice Music & Cued Routines for Clogging

This CD contains 4 great old time bluegrass songs that will get your hands clappin' and your toes tappin'. Old Joe Clark is recorded with a starting temp that is very slow, then every 64 beats there is an 8 beat tempo change that speeds the music up just a little. This is a great track for teaching beginner classes, working on new steps or styling. Old Joe Clark is also included in a full tempo version.

The other tracks on this CD project are renditions and medleys of old time tunes with routines choreographed by Jeff Driggs of West Virginia and Naomi Pyle of Indiana. Cue sheets for these dances are included in this insert.
