To the Readers You Had to Be There

There is a joke that says, "No matter where you go... there you are."

It's a fun and unexpected take on a classic saying. The unfortunate reality though is that too often we find ourselves anywhere but here when it comes to the time we spend with our students.

Everyone has a different style of teaching and each person has a comfort level with regard to interaction and engagement when they are presenting.

When I find myself distracted or consumed with other thoughts and concerns when it comes time to teach, I tend to interact less with students and face the front and demonstrate and instruct without feedback. If the routine is new and I don't feel prepared or if I haven't taught in a while I often times feel like I am nervously talking and running through just to get to the end of it. Maybe if I don't turn around they won't see that I am thinking about something else.

Well, trust me, our students do notice. I have never left a stage or a dance floor when I was distracted that I felt like I was a good teacher. And it is easy to have a lot on your mind. We are busier than ever and running classes, teams and groups has gotten more complex than ever before and our clogging competes with more and more activities.

For that reason, it is more important than ever to take the time to prepare for your classes for the benefit of both you and your students. They are giving of their time and resources to take your classes, when goodness knows there are a million options for everyone on any given night. You will find your teaching experience to be more enjoyable and less stressful when you actually rehearse and plan the time so that the time spent with your students is enjoyable and productive for you both.

The bills will still need paid at the end of the night, the TV show you are missing can be tivo'ed, and the troubles of the day will melt away if you clear your mind, listen to the music and let your feet do what attracted you to clogging in the first place. Get your head in the game and "be" there... for you and for them.

Happy Clogging, Jeff Driggs, Editor

Your Letters & Emails: Where It's @

Make Your Own Kind of Music

I received the Double Toe Times a few days ago and just started reading it. As always, I enjoyed your editorial and had to add a note of my own.

I've always been aware of the attraction that clogging has to people - perhaps it's a combination of the lively music, the fast footwork, and the enthusiasm and obvious fun that the dancers are having.

I was at a huge music festival this past weekend. Whenever a lively piece of music was played there were several people up stomping their feet to the music. What they were doing wasn't quite clogging, but it shows the desire people have to move to a lively, fun beat. If they knew clogging steps, that's what they would have done. I myself did a bit of clogging on the grass to the Chieftain's "Wabash Cannonball/Cotton-eyed Joe" of course!

I also came across two young fellows who set up a drum set, small amp, guitar, and microphone on a side road and performed to the crowd that gathered until the cops came and shut them down. Their music didn't attract me, but their energy and enthusiasm sure did. I was mesmerized and enjoyed watching. Clogging does the same thing to people. :)

Lois Elling

Editors's Note:

I agree, Lois. As excited I am that clogging is getting the recognition that it deserves in the dance world and that clogging has grown to incorporate a variety of percussive and dance stylings, I hope that we never turn our back on the grass roots ability of clogging to touch people in a very personal way. Just like old time music, there is something very basic about the rhythms of Appalachian dance that some may roll their eyes at but everyone will admit is more than infectious to both watch and to try.

The Show Must Go On

Ohio Workshop Goes on With Help of Clogging Friends

by Adam King
Columbus, Ohio

When the workshop director gets injured, how does the show go on? That was the dilemma facing the 2009 Memorial Day Clogging Spectacular held May 22-24 at the King's Island Resort in Kings Mills, Ohio.

The answer: The clogging family pulls together to put on a rockin' event in spite of the difficulties.

When Sallie James went down with a broken back (don't worry, she's recovering nicely), longtime friends including Lee Froehle, Brian Tucker and a host of others rolled up their sleeves and took on the administration of the event. Lee and past event co-coordinator Jeff Driggs came in early to meet with the hotel regarding the logistics for the weekend and Lee and Brian took charge from there. With the help of the Rhythm Sensation Cloggers of Michigan and Sallie's clogging friends, they all gathered before the event to build dance floors, set stages and get all of the logistics together for the event. When the dancers began to arrive, it looked like nothing had gone amiss with their keen abilities to organize and deliver a great clogging experience.

The halls were full and the variety of material was extraordinary. That was still true after two instructors had to call in absent the day before Saturday's teach — yes, when it rains, it pours — which left four open slots on the schedule.

No problem. Other dancers attending stepped forward to fill the gaps, including Reina Beaven of Louisville, Ky., and Brian Tucker of Michigan.

After a full day on the dance floor, about 10 teams got together to put on an exhibition featuring car-themed music, with renditions of Pink Cadillac, Car Wash, etc. Then there was a "special" exhibition that featured Morgan Hudson of Lexington, Ky., giving his best comedic rendition of Michael Flatley. Morgan might not earn a starring role in Lord of the Dance anytime soon, but he had the cloggers in stitches as he leaped, crawled and whooped his way across the floor with the help of his backup dancers, who to this day wish to remain anonymous. :-)

Bottom: Top: Scotty Bilz, national clogging instructor from Georgia, circles up with dancers at the Memorial Day Clogging Spectacular

The evening had a special flavor as everyone in attendance got to yell get-well wishes to Sallie over a cell phone speaker, and attendees signed an oversized get-well card, which Sallie appreciated to no end.

So let Memorial Day be a lesson for future clogging workshops in dire straits: No matter the drama, the desire to have fun and enjoy each other's camaraderie will always prevail. Of course, we'll take a little less drama in 2010, if that's OK with you.

STOMPIN' OUT CANCER

"God gave us these wonderful skills. We might as well use them to help each other." says Dorothy Stephenson, director of the Stompin' Out Cancer event.

The Mountain Heritage Cloggers, Little Switzerland Cloggers, Mountain State Cloggers and Sundance Express recently held a two hour mega-performance to raise money for the American Cancer Society through the Highland County Relay for Life in Monterey, a small town in the mountains of western Virginia. Two flatbed trailers pulled closely together held a dance floor. The trailers were parked next to a green field with grazing cattle and a picturesque mountain landscape in the background. The sound of clogging taps filled the air and echoed through the small town and the audience watched in amazement as they lay on the cool, green grass or sat on the old wooden bleachers.

The evening was filled with music of every genre accompanied by the crisp sound of metal taps on a dance floor. Master of Ceremonies, Jimmy Loveless, guided the audience through the performance. He also called square dances and auctioned off homemade cakes. The perfect hometown fundraiser - neighbors coming together to help neighbors.

All together the fundraiser brought a donation of $512.00 to the Relay for Life. Not an enormous amount by some standards, but think about what $512.00 times two or three would be. What about $512.00 multiplied by 50?

"I want to encourage other cloggers and clogging groups throughout the United States, or the world for that matter, to host their own Stompin' Out Cancer event," Stephenson said. "$512.00 per event could make a huge difference to the fight against cancer. Think about the money we could raise with a Stompin' Out Cancer event in every state!" "We all know someone who has been touched by cancer whether it be a parent, a sibling, a grandparent or a friend. Let's pull our clogging family together to raise money to defeat this deadly disease. We can do this! God gave us these gifts. Let's use them!"

For more information on Stompin' Out Cancer or for information to host your own event, contact Dorothy Stephenson at clogger4life318@hotmail.com. You can also visit her website at www.sundancestudio.org. If you would like to send a donation, please address your envelope to: Dorothy Stephenson, 1356 Potomac River Road, Monterey, VA. 24465.

CLOGJAM

Members of the clogging group Clogjam kick up their heels to their routine to "Raisin' The Barn" by Keith Urban during their performance at the Fourth of July Riverfest at Riverfront Park on the banks of the Mississippi River in LaCrosse, Wisconsin.

Clogjam was founded five years ago by cloggers Tracy Mullaney and Christi Pfaff and has grown since that time to a performance group that performs throughout the year across the state and at clogging events and workshops.

You can learn more about Clogjam by visiting them on the web at www.clogjam.com

Clogging Evolution

Cloggers in the Spotlight

Summer may be over, but clogger Geoff Steele is winding up as he prepares to start a new team from recent auditions for his new clogging group "Evolution". Geoff has had a successful year teaching and training students at Premier Studio of Dance in Bridgeport, West Virginia and is ready to take it to the next level by beginning to compete with this dancers.

Geoff, an alumni of the Bailey Mountain Cloggers, has many national titles under his belt in all styles of dance. "I love working with kids - it keeps me young", says Steele. The past four years have been spent leading a hip-hop team to 18 national titles across the eastern coast.

Premier's advanced clogging class performed a well-received routine during the end-of-the year's dance extravaganza. It was a blending of hip-hop, Fosse and clogging done to a hip-hop version of the Broadway classic "All That Jazz". It is no wonder then, that the staff and students at Premier are excited about this new, ever-evolving clogging team. "It is good to be back among friends" Geoff added.

"Evolution" will be a blending of many styles and types of footwork. The team will debut at the Mountaineer Week Clogging Competition held at West Virginia University on November 14th. You can find out more about the new team at www.premierstudioofdance.com or follow us them face book under Premier Clogging.

Cloggers and studio dancers from eleven different states, from as far away as Pennsylvania to Nebraska and California, gathered in Ohio at the Kings Island Resort over Memorial Day weekend for the 2009 World of Clogging Championships.

Two days of competition featured more than 130 clogging team dances, dance studios, plus duos and duets and five categories of solo competition. Champions took home cash prizes as well as some of the tallest trophies ever offered at the long running event.

The championships moved from Columbus Ohio to Kings Mills to add additional ballrooms to accommodate the sister event Memorial Day Clogging Spectacular Workshops on the Friday and Saturday preceding the competition, as well as to give participants the opportunity to enjoy Kings Island Theme Park, a 364-acre amusement and water park featuring more than 80 rides, shows and attractions, including more than 15 roller coasters.

Saturday nights events included the duo/duet competition and the dance studio duos, trios and solos, as well as the choreographed clogging solo competition.

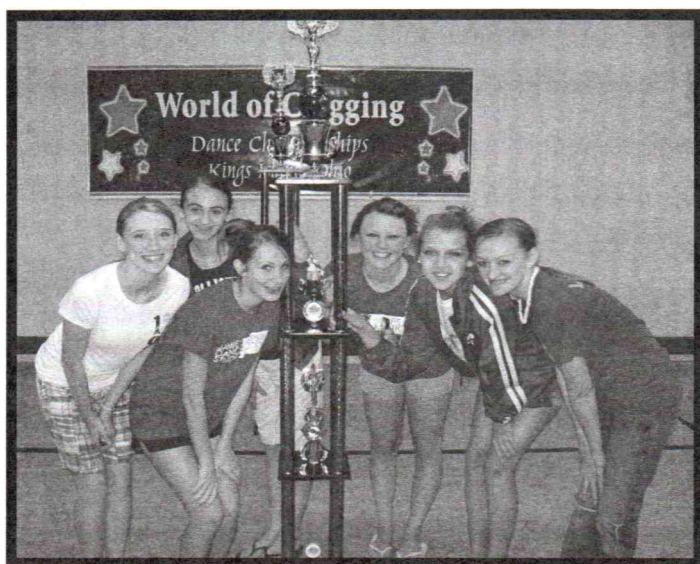

Sunday's event began early with a director's meeting and went right into the amateur solo and team competition. Dance studios followed and then challenge solos and teams.

The schedule was moved along and the crowd was entertained by emcee Delohn Collins.

Delohn is an original member of "ALL THAT" who were finalists on America's Got Talent. Another member of ALL THAT, Brian Staggs, was a judge along with Scott and Dena Dobson, IN, Kelly Sexton, TN, Pam Smiley, MD, Lynne Ogle, TN, Missy Sawyer, NY and Stan Webb, MO.

During a break in the competition, dancers donned huge inflatable shoes and tried to see how well they could dance. The winner -- Lauren Thomas of Kentucky -- won an inflatable trophy. Entrants gave contributions which were matched by the event and more than $500.00 was raised to help wounded soldiers and their families.

Scotty Bilz was honored during the event for his contributions to clogging.

Practice Music & Cued Routines for Clogging

This CD contains 4 great old time bluegrass songs that will get your hands clappin' and your toes tappin'. Old Joe Clark is recorded with a starting temp that is very slow, then every 64 beats there is an 8 beat tempo change that speeds the music up just a little. This is a great track for teaching beginner classes, working on new steps or styling. Old Joe Clark is also included in a full tempo version.

The other tracks on this CD project are renditions and medleys of old time tunes with routines choreographed by Jeff Driggs of West Virginia and Naomi Pyle of Indiana. Cue sheets for these dances are included in this insert.
