Buried Treasure

This Fall, two of my brothers spent some time at my home working on a backyard project. After a rainy spell, one of my brothers was lighting a fire in the firepit and noticed a smooth, rounded dark object had popped up from a damp area in the grass. After digging it up, we were at a loss to figure out what this dirt covered thing was.

We brought the object into the house and cut it open to find a black dense center with white flecks and a strong earthy smell. We went to the internet and googled “fungus” and other serach items and found information and pictures of truffles that looked exactly like what we had found in the yard. Further research bolstered our thinking when we found that all of the soil and climate conditions perfectly matched those needed for truffle growth. Much to our surprise, we additionally found that truffles are quite rare and can be worth a pretty penny. Finding that, we went back to the yard to the area we had found the first object and began digging. My brothers found dozens more, and all within the same small area. Weighing them on the bathroom scale in a basket, we guesstimated that we had more than ten pounds of truffles and were already trying to think of how to split all of the money we were going to get for them.

There was just one major problem. No matter how many people we sent pictures of our find to, nobody was willing to confirm the worth of the find or give us direction to find a market for them. Oh sure, we had several people tell us that they agreed that what we had looked like truffles. We tried the state agricultural commission, area resorts, farmers markets and every internet source we could ask. I even called the head chef at a resort in our state and described what we found and he said “Sounds like truffles to me.” He couldn’t purchase them, though because of the restrictions and contracts they had with food service vendors. After over a week of daily calls and emails, frustrated, we gave up on our quest and left our truffle windfall in a paper bag on the back porch unused.

What do backyard truffles have to do with clogging? I have seen so many people in clogging who had talents of great value who kept them hidden away or didn’t follow their dreams because of rejections or fear of rejection. If you want to choreograph or teach workshops or start a team or direct, sometimes you hear alot of “no’s” before you hear a “yes.”

Even when you get a chance to do what you desire, there are no guarantees that those doors will stay open or that other doors will open as well. The key is to not walk away from the gate.

Longfellow said “Perseverance is a great element of success. If you only knock long enough and loud enough at the gate, you are sure to wake up somebody.” As someone who puts on workshops and teaches at them as well, I’ve looked at things from both sides. I hear from hopeful teachers all of the time who ask “What would it take to teach at a workshop?” While I admire the confidence to ask and ability to self promote, I usually am more impressed when I actually get to see a teacher in action. So, for me, paying your dues is important. As a young teacher just starting in clogging, I taught more free workshops than paying ones, but most always the opportunities that availed themselves came from those freebies.

Sure, there were times when I was broke and teaching for free and sleeping on the floor of the “name” instructor with three other teachers who were working for free, but I wanted so much to be a part of this world I would have taught anywhere, anytime.

I have been incredibly lucky. I have had a lot of help and a lot of people who believed in me and gave me chances and taught me how to respect the business of clogging while promoting and preserving the art.

As I look back on thirty years of clogging, I can say without question that the greatest gift clogging has given me:

more than the traveling,
more than the handful of trophies I’ve won,
more than seeing my name on a tshirt haha, is the family of friends I’ve made that mean everything to me. After rounds of burnout and renewal the friendships are what stand the test of time.

Let those friends rally behind you keep you motivated and appreciated and let your talent shine through. Stay the course and don’t let your treasure stay buried. To any and all you share your talents with you are an artist and a success.

Happy Clogging,
Jeff Driggs, Editor

Let Your Feet do the Talkin'

New Documentary Tells the Story of 70 Year Old Buck Dancing Legend Thomas Maupin

A new film titled "Let Your Feet do the Talking" by award-winning documentary filmmaker Stewart Copeland from Tullahoma, Tennessee is making the rounds of festivals and sharing the story of buck dancing legend Thomas Maupin, who, at the age of 70, remains one of the greatest old time dancers in America. Framed between Thomas' recovery from cancer and his acceptance of a nationally recognized award, the piece presents a deeply personal look at a folk icon. As well as being a portrait of an artist, Let Your Feet Do The Talkin' asks the question, "What drives us to perform?" and examines art's ability to form and strengthen relationships and lift us above our circumstances.

The film presents a portrait of a folk icon reflecting back on his legacy as a father, teacher, and artist.

From his boyhood days in central Tennessee, Thomas Maupin, 66, was surrounded by dance. On his dad's side, relatives often danced at a Saturday night hoedown, or barn dance somewhere. "And my mom's side—my mom didn't dance, but she had rhythm—her people were dancers." His grandmother Will lived with them, and he hears tunes now that he remembers her dancing to barefoot on the floor. "I can hear her heel step now," he mused when describing her smooth, straight up dance style. "I think I got a double dose," he recalled. "I can see some of my family members now, especially on my dad's side . . . old country men. Clay Underwood, an old bent-over man, had the same rhythm style that I've got, but different steps. I can see where I developed from, but my steps are me. There's a connection with them, but every buckdancer has their individual style and individual steps."

Thomas came from a family of ten brothers and sisters, and each danced in their own way. "I was just a little ole skinny boy—of which I still am," Thomas laughingly admitted. Basketball coach, Rush Jr. (Taylor), encouraged him to dance a little jig whenever they met in the hallway, to encourage the youngster to develop something uniquely his own. But there is one brother, now gone, who holds a special place in his heart. "Ollie B.," whom Thomas regarded as almost a twin, "was four years older than me. He and I shared the same rhythm. We had different steps, but we favored . . . I loved to dance with him. I could almost trade licks with him." Like Thomas, his brother Ollie B. was also "a self-taught buckdancer, and a good dancer. Instead of making noise, he had a purpose to his steps. And we have danced together in competitions. I think maybe one year he beat me in the Nationals." About that contest, Thomas recalls telling Ollie that he was "not going to let up. 'Hey, you give it all you've got. I'm going to give it all I've got.'" His brother Ollie "gave me his shoes, before he passed along—and I dance in 'em. His is a little big . . . it's a little hard for me to fill his shoes, being they're a little bigger."

Numerous awards, trophies, and plaques lay stacked in a dresser in rural Tennessee where Thomas spends his weeks tending his garden, feeding the animals, and fixing the occasional lawn mower. However, on the weekends, Thomas travels all over the South performing anywhere there's a band and some flat ground; be it giant stages, historic theaters, or crowded street corners, almost always accompanied by his grandson, Daniel.

"You play the tune with your feet," stated Maupin.

"When I am dancing I become a part of that tune. I become an instrument."

At the age of sixteen years old, Daniel has become a prominent old time banjo player who, with his quick wit, hot licks and uncanny showmanship, rarely finishes a song without a standing ovation. "Music is a way for us to communicate," says Thomas, "he speaks with his banjo and I let my feet do the talkin'." Even though Thomas and Daniel excel without each other, it's apparent there is something more when they perform together; a magic and beauty that cannot be described with words, but comes across vividly on film.

By fusing poignant interviews, observational footage, and unorthodox camera style the film rejects a traditional documentary aesthetic, instead seeking visual parallels between characters and environments. Although the film's narrative is rooted in an American tradition, Thomas' experience transcends nationalities, ethnicities, and cultures and appeals to emotions that are universal; leaving the audience with not only the story of a man, but a greater understanding of the human condition.

In spite of the heartaches and hardships he has encountered, Thomas has never stopped dancing, gaining him adoration, distinction, and most importantly, happiness. Let Your Feet Do The Talkin' asks the question, "What drives us to perform?" and examines music's ability to form and strengthen relationships and lift us above our circumstances.

Maupin was honored as the recipient of the 2009 Uncle Dave Macon Trailblazer Award presented on the opening night of the 32nd annual festival in Murfreesboro, Tennessee. This distinguished award is given to those who have been at the forefront of preserving a traditional art. Thomas, a six-time buck dancing national champion is considered one of the best flat-foot dancers in the country, and he has the awards to prove it. Winning more than 60 first-place honors as well as the Nashville Silver Stars Talent show for artists 60 years and older is quite of an accomplishment for this self-taught dancer. This year he also was a finalist for the Tennessee Governor's Award in the Arts.

More information about Thomas Maupin and the documentary "Let Your Feet do the Talkin'" can be found on the internet at

<http://www.thomascandance.com>

Compiled for the Double Toe Times from interviews and stories by Linda Gunderson, Old Time Herald and Bobbie Sue Shelton-Lonas

Tennessee dancer Thomas Maupin, who describes himself as a "self-taught buckdancer with a flatfoot style," has hoofed his way to numerous state and national prizes. In recent years his snappy flatfooting has thrilled crowds at events such as the Museum of Appalachia's Fall Homecoming in Tennessee and the Appalachian String Band Festival in West Virginia. Maupin's basic humility and shyness go with his country upbringing, but he is absolutely passionate about dance: "I love old-time music. It's got my rhythm. I am that band when I'm a-dancing."

call squares. His father, an aunt and two uncles were members of the Grand Ole Opry Square Dance Team and they took him to dances somewhere every week. In 1966 this inductee joined Ralph Sloan and the Tennessee Travelers on the Grand Ole Opry and danced with them until Ralph passed away. He also danced with the Melvin Sloan Dancers from 1980-2002. In 2002 he began dancing with the Grand Ole Opry Dancers where he sometimes has the opportunity to call and lead sets.

He has made numerous appearances all over the country including the Dinah Shore show, Ralph Emory show, National Music Syndicated show and Hee Haw.

One of the great events in this Oliver's life was conducting a square dance at Lincoln Square in New York City. He took three other dancers from the Grand Ole Opry to help as he called and tried to teach New Yorkers our style of Traditional Dancing.

Oliver has spent his whole life teaching and trying to preserve our Southern Appalachian style of square dancing and clogging.

Carol Wiggins and William Deery

Carol Wiggins and William Deery met during their first beginner clogging class in 1981 in Charleston, SC. At that time, very few people in the area had heard of clogging and they decided to make it their goal to spread the art.

After graduation, they paired up to become the Goodtime Cloggers, packed their bags, started competing in duet throughout the southeast and began taking workshops from the masters. In 1982, after competing and studying for a year, they taught their first beginner clogging class. Determined to establish clogging in the low country, this dynamic pair also spent the next two years teaching basic clogging as part of the physical education program in the Charleston County Public Schools and worked with the Girl Scouts of America to create Girl Scout Clogging Troops. After donating these services, the word spread quickly and they were soon teaching beginner lessons throughout the entire tri-county area.

The Goodtime Clogger duet performed with the legendary Earnest Tubb, appeared on the nationally televised Discovery Talent Show, and won an all expense paid trip to Nashville, Tennessee to dance on the Grand Ole Opry Stage. They performed aboard several prestigious cruise ships including the Queen Elizabeth II, The Saga Fjord and a number of ships in the Carnival Cruise Lines. Their "Red, White and Clue" duet routine was selected to open the American Palladium on July 4th at the 1984 World's Fair in New Orleans, La. They also teamed up with a New York producer/director, Traynor Ferillo, who chose them to be featured performers and dance directors in his annual variety show held at the historic Dockstreet Theater in downtown Charleston. They worked with that show for ten years and helped to raise over a quarter million dollars for local charities.

Deery and Wiggins are credited with forming and directing many successful teams during the early 1980's. The team, for which they are best known, is the award winning Fancy Free Cloggers who danced in traditional royal blue gingham check costumes. The Fancy Free Cloggers won the over-all grand championship award with America's Clogging Hall of Fame in 1991 and the National Clogging and Hoedown Council's top point holding team in Young-Adult Open Freestyle in 1993.

They have each won numerous duo/duet, team and solo awards and both are members of the ACHF All-American Team and the NCHC All Star Team. Combined, they have served over twenty years as various officers of the South Carolina Clogging Council, including Vice-president, membership chairman, secretary, treasurer and newsletter editor. William was responsible for the conception of the SCCC Palmetto's finest team and has also held the office of secretary and newsletter editor for ACHF. They have both completed courses in judges training and he served as a judge for several years. During the past seven years they have worked together to create the duo known as Double Dazzle. Carol performs in this duo, as well as designs and makes the costumes while he has been influential in its choreography and success since the beginning. For more than 28 years they have worked together to promote and preserve the art of clogging. Through it all, they have remained best friends.

Each year, the ACHF organization accepts nominations for the ACHF All-American Team. Selection is determined by the dancer's Leadership, Clogging Skills, Enthusiasm and Team Spirit. There are only 24 selected each year and the group is honored at the October ACHF National Dance Off. This year's All America Team members are:

Teaching and Running a Dance Club

What you can learn from your dancers

One thing you may have noticed about dancers is they just love to talk about dance and can do so for hours!! They'll bleat about irritations but they'll gush with enthusiasm over what they like best. So one way to make improvements to your classes and club is to listen to them!

The ideal format for a complete dance evening

The runaway success of certain clubs suggests a formula for a successful dance evening. Many popular clubs start with a beginners' class of 45 minutes (ending with a few minutes of music in which the newly learned routine is tried out, along with easy routines and previous dances).

There follows a class for the more advanced dancers (who have attended several lessons). Again, the class ends with people dancing the routine they have just learned to music. The end of class practice starts with a variety of cued routines and open dancing, gradually changing tracks for more speed and energy. If you have the ability to adjust the lighting, it is often more comfortable for the dancers to have the lights dimmed somewhat for the fun dancing and open dancing section of the evening. With the stark instruction lighting dimmed a little, the evening slips seamlessly from a class into a 'party' for enjoyable freestyle dancing.

Timing

If your class or club is in a population center, and your crowd is a straight-from-work set, then start early. Your pupils will arrive straight from work and can have to commute home afterwards. - these tend to be singles. If your class or club is suburban or rural, then start later as they will go home after work and often want to eat and change before going out again in the evening.

The importance of 'Freestyle' and open dancing

Schoolchildren get a thorough grammar grounding in foreign languages yet often leave school unable to converse with native speakers of the language because they lack practice. Dance is a language too. Even though pupils gain a mountain of steps in class, they may be unable to dance more than a couple of steps without a cuer because they lack freestyle practice. Like pilots clocking up flying hours, dancers need to clock up those hours of 'freestyle'.

Some teachers prefer to teach in a studio and have no desire to run a club.

For others the social interaction of the after-class 'party' is the 'raison d'être' of being a teacher. From the dancers point of view though - why learn if you cannot dance at every opportunity - and the best time is straight after class so as not to forget it all. Dancers tend to complain if the 'freestyle' and open dancing is not at least as long as the lesson - and many prefer it to be about double the length of the class.

The Teacher

Dancers are prepared to travel out of their way to attend the class of a valued teacher. This is what they say they look for:

- Punctuality & being prepared for the class
- A warm welcome - especially for newcomers and beginners
- A clear, audible voice (aided a microphone if the class is large)
- Authority - they do not expect the teacher to be a great dancer - just a very good teacher, who gives clear, concise instructions without too much pedantry.
- A good mix of instruction with action. Some teachers make their pupils stand around while they 'sound forth' for ages. Dancers complain about this most of all because it is boring. They prefer to learn a step or sequence - then dance - pick up another - then dance again.
- Good cueing of the moves. Dancers are not content with "5, 6, ready, go" all the time. They appreciate cues that describe the action as well as keeping time (especially when doing a long routine). Practice listening to your routines and saying the step 4 beats before they are done i.e. "Rocking Chair...7...8".
- View of the teacher - they like to be able to see the teacher's feet. Up on stage is best if it is a big class.
- Good class management - they like the class to be paced just right - not too repetitive (too boring) and not too fast (or too difficult). This is the biggest challenge for teachers - especially those with large classes of mixed ability.
- Humor/ pleasant manner - they like a teacher to quip the occasional joke or at least keep a light hearted approach.

- Good presentation - they like a teacher to be well presented (even though in casual dress).
- No undue possessiveness of your class attendees. Much as we like to think our pupils are our own, in reality they like to try out a variety of teachers and dance styles. Some teachers treat their pupils like traitors for attending another class. In worst cases they pour scorn on the other teacher's work. Such behavior does little to enhance the image of the dance industry. This 'proprietary' attitude makes pupils feel uncomfortable and is usually met with the contempt it deserves. Once dancers join your performance group or competition team, you can exercise guidelines about protecting choreography. On a fun dance level, I would not suggest telling your dancers they cannot attend workshops.
- Encouragement - pupils like to be told how good they are getting - not how useless they are. Worst of all - they HATE to be ridiculed in front of others! It is surprising how many teachers make this 'faux pas'.
- Inspiration - this is more than just encouragement and motivation. Some teachers have a rare ability to make people feel good about themselves. Everyone has an innate ability to experience pure joy through dance. Good teachers help people to unlock their inhibitions and experience this joy. Dancers gravitate to these empowering teachers.

The Venue

These are what dancers say they value

- A large, high quality dance floor
- Good sound quality and lighting
- Good directions to get there - a map on the leaflet or web page is best.
- Good sign posting at entrances - to remove the stress of finding the way into an unfamiliar venue.

- A car park or easy street parking/good access to public transport.
- A warm welcome at the sign up desk - especially when new to a venue.
- A friendly crowd - dancers are discouraged by cliquey groups of regulars who all seem to know each other. It is up to the teacher/organizer and staff to prompt regulars into welcoming newcomers (happily this is seldom necessary). Clubs are microcosms of 'life' and any bad-apple gossip can turn an atmosphere sour - bringing an otherwise good club down. The teacher/organizer and staff should nip any unpleasant gossip in the bud and certainly NEVER join in!
- Adequate seating for learners and 'non-dance' areas for chatting.
- Clean restrooms (very important).
- Safety - avoidance of personal injury.
- Water provided or sold inexpensively.
- "Chaque a son gout" say the French - each to their own taste. It is the music mix that governs everything about the club and decides the clientele. Clogging routines are done to all types of music. Find the balance between country, bluegrass, pop and other musical styles that fits your vision for your group and your demographic.
- A routine that will pack the floor in one club may clear it in the next so stay receptive to your pupils' tastes (not just your own). Dancers tend to be conservative, preferring to dance to familiar songs. New routines and songs need to be 'introduced' in class and gauged by popularity to add to the fun dancing and open dancing part of class.

Venue quality

Dancers are buying not just tuition but also a fun night out and ambiance is important to them. They are very judgmental about halls that are uncomfortable or detract from the learning environment. Poor acoustics makes your dancers struggle to hear the cues or instruction, so it is important to invest in the necessary equipment when these are not provided by the venue.

Sound equipment

If you supply your own sound system it must be safe, suitable for the job and time efficient to carry in and out. Professional equipment designed for easy use and easy transport is recommended. If you need speaker stands use proper ones. Typically, an available power of about one watt per person should be adequate. Teacher's wireless microphones should be the aerobic head-band type or handheld. Clip on lapel or lavalier mics are fine for speaking, but do not pick up clearly when trying to cue over the music.

Safety and Legal Issues

I have seldom heard dancers talk about safety issues. However, they like to swap stories about injuries! The most common injuries occur when people slip on a slick floor or in new shoes, or when attempting a challenging step or move in spite of having a pre-existing chronic back or knee problem. Teachers cannot give all their pupils a medical prior to the class, but it is astute to prelude your classes with a tap check or floor check and more challenging moves with a comment like: "For anyone with a back/ knee problem please take good care with your technique - or don't try this out if you're unsure".

Checklist

Insurance cover - is this adequate and valid?
Fire safety - are all fire exits free of obstacles?
Health - are you First Aid trained?
Music - are you licensed? Are your sound systems compliant with noise level restrictions?
Security issues - are women safe in the vicinity of your club at night? Are customers' parked vehicles well lit? Do you provide adequate theft prevention? e.g. manned entrance

Foot Notes

Henry Wilson, 1920 - 2009

Cloggers in the Cincinnati, Ohio area will remember fondly the Click Clack Cloggers and their director's Henry and Millie Wilson, who taught scores of people of all ages to clog and square dance for more than twenty years.

Henry passed away on December 28, 2009. He was a proud veteran of World War II and worked for over 33 years for Armco Steel. Henry and Millie were like grandparents to the many young people who danced for them throughout the years and their group was known for their fun shows and their competition chant of "Click Clack, Click Clack... Whoop Whoop!"

Missouri Clogging Council

The Missouri Clogging Council held it's final sponsored workshop this Fall featuring Scotty Bilz, Missy Shinoski and Jeff Driggs, plus several area instructors. The council is dissolving after more than 28 years of hosting events and promoting clogging in the state of Missouri and surrounding states. The evening dance recognized all of the volunteers in attendance who have worked as officers or supporters of the council throughout it's history. Past council presidents (left to right) Robyn Dalby, Debbie Keeling, Karen Robinson and Missy Shinoski thanked everyone for their support throughout the years and the event ended with everyone in a big circle for one last group hug and passing of the shoe for luck. Thanks for the memories!

Clogging Group for Those Who Don't Have the Desire to Perform

By Michael Fortuna, Florida Daily Sun

THE VILLAGES, FLORIDA — Bobbi Truskin wanted to keep her feet moving in her clogging shoes, so last month, she joined the ranks of Clog 4 Fun, which is taught by Judy Roth.

"I love clogging, but I really didn't have time to do it (for myself) before," said Truskin, who lives in the Village of Santo Domingo. "I had taught in a show team, but I didn't want to do shows anymore. I wanted to have some more fun. I don't have go home and practice, because it's for fun now."

Truskin and other residents donned their white or black clogging shoes for their weekly dance session Monday afternoon at Canal Street Recreation Center.

While the music played, Roth, sometimes with a small piece of paper in her hand, called out the next dance move to the others.

If there are dancers who are new to the group, Roth will get them up to speed with the routines being done that day. "It's very good exercise," said Roth, a Village of Silver Lake resident. "It's good for your heart. We call it aerobic clogging."

Every month, Roth will introduce a new routine into the mix. So far, the group has about 75 routines under its belt.

Yvonne Danahy and Shirley Lacey assist Roth during the two sessions. The three also go over new routines a couple of hours a week, and they travel to various workshops.

"They teach me," Roth said. "I couldn't do it without their help and all the wonderful cloggers in my class. We all have a good relationship."

Roth formed the group in 2005 after noticing a missing piece of the dancing puzzle in The Villages. "There wasn't a place to clog unless you were in a performing group," Roth said. "If you didn't perform, you didn't clog."

Clog 4 Fun began at Southside Recreation Center with about 10 cloggers. Since that time, the group has moved to Canal Street Recreation Center, where it holds two sessions a week.

During this time of year, Roth said that about 25 intermediate dancers come to the sessions, while the winter months bring in around 45.

Roth decided to jump into the world of clogging in 2002 when she saw Sheldon's Village Stompers perform at an Ohio Buckeye Club meeting. "I loved to see them dance," Roth said. "(But) he held classes at 7 in the morning."

Eventually, Roth found an afternoon class to take, and the dance moves came easy for her.

She later danced with a show team for three years before forming Clog 4 Fun. "I never danced much before I came down here," Roth said.

In addition to the two Clog 4 Fun sessions, Roth takes another clogging class, followed by a practice session on Sundays. "There's always something to do," Roth said.

Truskin, who has been clogging for nine years, probably caught the dancing bug from her mother, who was a professional dancer.

Truskin will be teaching a beginning clogging class at The Villages Lifelong Learning College in the fall. "It's easy for me," Truskin said of dancing. "I love it so much. It's my passion. I love the sound, the movement."

The Clog 4 Fun group meets at 1 p.m. Mondays and 2 p.m. Thursdays at Canal Street Recreation Center. Resident cloggers with intermediate experience are welcome to attend. For information, call Judy Roth at 352-753-0249.

Laura Bell Bundy's "Giddy" Over Country Debut

Laura Bell Bundy has the country singing and dancing to "Giddy on Up, Giddy on Out" and has the singer ever thankful for finding success with her other lifelong dream.

Singer-songwriter Bundy first conquered Broadway in the Tony Award-nominated Legally Blonde: The Musical. With dreams of country music stardom in her eyes, she left the Great White Way for Nashville in 2008 to record her debut album, Achin' and Shakin'.

The music video for "Giddy On Up," features fellow "Legally Blonde" performer Brian Patrick Murphy and clogging and country dance inspired choreography by original "Rock of Ages" choreographer RJ Durell. The video premiered on CMT in January.

There are two sides to every story, as the old adage goes, and there are certainly two sides to the story of singer-songwriter Laura Bell Bundy's daring Mercury Records debut release, Achin' and Shakin'. Laura Bell bypassed the tried-and-true Music Row approach usually taken on country albums and instead created a bold concept album that is essentially two separate albums within one project.

"I have two different sides of my personality," she explains. "I have a crazy, wild, humorous, outspoken personality, and then I have a depth that only opens up when I am alone or with one other person, and that is captured with this album. I really couldn't do one without the other."

"I listen to music depending upon the mood that I'm in. If I want to chill out, I will listen to certain music and almost make a playlist for it. If I am running or driving and want to hear up-paced music, I listen to different songs, so I created a two-sided album."

It's no surprise that Laura Bell shattered the usual industry formulas because nothing about her entertainment career has been normal. Like two of her idols Reba McEntire and Dolly Parton, she traveled the musical highway that spans from Nashville to New York's famed Broadway.

She originated the lead role of Elle Woods in the Broadway musical Legally Blonde, for which she received a Tony Award nomination. She also originated the role of Amber Von Tussle in the Tony Award-winning Broadway musical Hairspray and played Glinda in the smash hit Wicked. Prior to that, she originated the role of Tina Denmark in the successful off-Broadway production Ruthless, The Musical!, for which she received the Outer-Critics Circle Award and Drama Desk nominations. (Her understudy, Britney Spears, also pursued a recording career.) Her professional career, which began at age nine, includes numerous network TV shows (Cold Case, Veronica Mars) and touring productions of Gypsy (featuring Betty Buckley) and The Sound of Music (featuring Marie Osmond). Her movie credits include Dream Girls, Jumanji, Life with Mikey and The Adventures of Huck Finn.

Her theatrical career has been a wonderful life experience that was a natural extension of her original dream of having a music career. Indeed, her time on Broadway propelled her pursuit of music, exposed her to a community of talented creative people and helped her become a better writer and performer.

After moving to New York at 18, she formed a country duo with roommate Amber Rhodes and they wrote and performed songs in various New York clubs. "In the meantime, I got Hairspray and Wicked, and honestly, that's how I supported myself."

"People can look at it and go, 'You went from Broadway to doing country,'" she says. "I actually went from the country to Broadway. I'm from Kentucky and I always listened to country music. When I started writing songs, it all came out country."

"It wasn't until I was on the Broadway radar that Nashville noticed me. Isn't that ironic? My showcase was my show, in some ways."

Born in Lexington, her father is an electrical engineer who owns a manufacturing plant and her mother manages a Victoria's Secret. Growing up, she had two older half-sisters, and at 16 her parents divorced and later remarried, so now her extended family is like a modern-day Brady Bunch.

Her father was raised in Sheffield, Ala., which is near musical hotbed Muscle Shoals (where his friends started Muscle Shoals Sound and Fame studios), so he introduced his daughter to 1960s soul, while her mother played country music in the house and car. "When I was three or four, I distinctly remember listening to 'Islands in the Stream' in the car and thinking it was the best song ever written," she says. "My mom kind of looked like Dolly Parton, so I thought Dolly Parton was my mom."

The strongest influence, however, was her grandfather, who was a radio DJ and newscaster who had a voice that was reminiscent of Bing Crosby and introduced her to Patsy Cline, Frank Sinatra, Pearl Bailey and Willie Nelson. "For me, being in Kentucky, the world was country music, and as I got older, I listened to country and oldies. It's all in this album."

At a young age she studied at the Town and Village School of Dance in Paris, KY. She landed her first professional job at age nine, requiring her to move with her mother to New York to be in Radio City Music Hall's Christmas Spectacular. A year later, she was appearing in Ruthless, which helped hone her comedy chops, and two years later began acting in movies and touring the nation with musicals.

She returned to Kentucky at age 14 so that she could have a normal high school experience. She ran track and cross country and limited her performances to school productions. "I started high school and within two months, my parents separated, which was heavy," she says. She began writing poetry in high school that she wouldn't show to anyone, and soon began creating melodies for her words.

After high school, she returned to New York, this time to attend New York University and run on its track team. But she landed the recurring role of Marah Lewis on The Guiding Light from 1999-2001, so her college plans were put on hold. It was during this time that she formed the country music duo with Amber. "Everything we did, our Kentucky came out. We were in the middle of New York singing country songs, which was kind of our gimmick in some way. We took it very seriously. Then we decided to do our own thing."

After a successful run on Broadway, she moved to Nashville in the fall of 2008 and has spent 18 months doing her own thing in her own unique way. Achin' and Shakin' is a culmination of her experiences on and offstage combined with her musical experiences, songwriting and Southern heritage.

"Songwriting and recording is my passion; this is my love," she says. "There's a part of myself that has come out that I really like and it's very important to me."

"This is a dream," she says of releasing her debut album. "It has been a dream since I was a kid. I think I always wanted to be an entertainer. There's an element of that at the Grand Ole Opry, where you can be funny and also be a singer. That is what I really want, that full scope of being a true entertainer."

Practice Music & Cued Routines for Clogging

This CD contains 4 great old time bluegrass songs that will get your hands clappin' and your toes tappin'. Old Joe Clark is recorded with a starting tempo that is very slow, then every 64 beats there is an 8 beat tempo change that speeds the music up just a little. This is a great track for teaching beginner classes, working on new steps or styling. Old Joe Clark is also included in a full tempo version.

The other tracks on this CD project are renditions and medleys of old time tunes with routines choreographed by Jeff Driggs of West Virginia and Naomi Pyle of Indiana. Cue sheets for these dances are included in this insert.

A Gift for You for Your Students

The Double Toe Times is proud to help you recognize the hard work of your clogging students to complete a series of classes by giving you a supply of "clogging diplomas" to hand out at your graduation night. The diplomas are on glossy paper stock with a colorful diploma design that features a clog dancer, a place for you to sign. Just drop us an email or letter, fax or letter to let us know how many diplomas you will need. Please make sure you allow at least 2 weeks to make sure we can get the diplomas to you through U.S. regular mail. Canadian and foreign readers allow 4 weeks.

These diplomas are not made available for resale to vendors, and are intended for use by clogging teachers to provide to students only.
You must be a subscriber to the Double Toe Times to be eligible. To order for your
